What is LIPOMAS ?

Lipomas (Skin Lumps) are small swellings of fat in the subcutaneous layer of the body. Lipomas are extremely common and generally symptomless. Some people may have multiple lipomas (in hundreds) i.e. Lipomatosis which can leave one with an unsightly lumpy bump appearance surgical removal through small keyhole incisions with liposuction can effectively treat this problem. However patients should be aware of the high chances of recurrence..

Lipomas are defined as tumours of the soft tissue. Mostly they are formed within the adipose (fatty) tissue and they can occur in many shapes, sizes and places on the body. They are mostly likely to develop in adults around middle age (40 to 60) but are often detected as congenital lipomas in children.

They are mainly a type of benign tumour and are soft to the touch, moveable and mostly painless. They are mostly formed between the skin and underlying muscle but can also be formed in the deep muscle tissues such as the intramuscular septa, or in the abdominal organs, the oral cavity, the internal auditory canal, the cerebellopontine angle and the thorax region.

Visible moles, warts, birthmarks or skin tags may ruin an otherwise unblemished complexion such as unsightly marks can be removed by LASERS, RF Cautery Or surgery. You can now flaunt flawless skin with confidence.
